LAWYERS' SAY ABOUT THAW

JEROME ADMITS COURT AND ALL TO HIS CONFIDENCE.

His Theory of a Prenatal Handleap of Thaw—Thinks That Only Evelyn Thaw Deliberately Testified Falsely -Morschauser in Thaw's Behalf.

WHITE PLAINS, Aug. 7.- The final arguments closing the hearing on Harry K. wan State Asylum for the Criminal Insane were heard by Justice Mills in the Supreme Court here to-day. District Attorney Jerome occupied most of the morning session in setting forth the reason why the State believes that Thaw is at present a dangerous lunatic and not fit to be turned Charles Morschauser, counsel for Thaw, filled the remainder of the morning's session and one hour in the afternoon with arguments for the release of the slayer of Stanford White as one cured of his temporary insanity.

All of White Plains, including even the King of Kings, was moved to attend court this morning to listen to the eloquence that flowed from the lips of the opposing attorneys. The King of Kings is one who believes that Bridgeport, Conn., is the New Jerusalem and who, clad in gold painted shoes and a ministerial frock coat, roams the streets of White Plains preaching his new dispensation and borrowing chews of tobacco wherever there is a disciple ready to loan. The King failed to gain access to the court room this morning and remained on the outside in the attitude of a fair to middling paranoise himself in his fear of the powers of evil outside of Bridgeport.

When Jerome arose to sum up the case of the State he generously complimented Justice Mills in no perfunctory way upon the manner in which the Justice had followed the involved testimony adduced in the three weeks proceedings. It was not an easy case to hear. Jerome said. because of the tremendous mass of evidence from the first and second trials for murder which had played an auxiliary part in the present determination of Thaw's condition.

"The typical parts of this testimony your Honor has now before you," Jerome "When taken as a whole that of both the first and second murder trials applying to facts and not the opinions of experts must be taken to demonstrate the truth of my belief that on neither trial was there a witness who deliberately falsified his testimony—that is, with the exception of one witness. This exception, Evelyn Thaw, did, I believe, deliberately and wilfully falsify in her testi-

"I think she did tell her husband that story about her having been ravished by Stanford White under all the grewsome circumstances that she detailed on ithe stand, and I believe that Thaw really did accept her story as truth; I have no q bubt of that fact whatever. But it requires only a short experience of life to know that such stories of drugging and the sequel are the stock in trade of women such as she. All the evidence shows conclusively his predisposition to accept these stories—a predisposition which me indicates a mind weakened and an abnormal amount of cred ulity."

After thus scoring the woman who had been the spectacular witness on bot h trials for murder, Jerome turned to the consideration of the testimony adduced in the present hearing and read into the record from the previous trials which tends to prove that Thaw inherited a taint of insanity. The District Attorney assured the Justice that it needed not the testimony of alienists to convince the average thinking man of the absolutely inevitable result of tainted ancestry upon its scions. "Heredi ty," he said, "is the dark background of the whole matter."

"Let me point out what may be an unpleasant fact to mention here." Jerome continued, "but which is nevertheless as patent as to defy being passed over. Dr. Harris, the witness for Thaw, said on the stand that from his observation he had been led to believe that all of the Thaw family with whom he had come in contact were, to put it mildly, queer. We must consider that Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, the mother of this relator, was in a highly neurotic state of mind when she bore him. "Throughout all of the present hearing there have appeared the shadows of sexual aberration. No direct testimony has been adduced—that is, no reliable testimony—to fix definitely upon Harry Thaw the stigma of being a sexual pervert. But he and his counsel have had to interject so many denials of so many circumstances of a like character that the hooves your Honor to take note of the implication behind the cause of those denials. First, there is the matter Ruth Lambert. It was reported from Paris that she had been whipped by Thaw, then follows the story of Ethel Thomas, the girl who was put in the scalding hot bathsub; of the Merrill woman, who testified here as to the dog whip found in Thaw's apartment in her house after his departure and the numerous girls she had to pay large sums to. Among the clippings that Dr. Baker, the arting superintendat at Matteawan, found in Thaw's clothes were many relating to crimes of violence against young women.

"If there had been any proof that Thaw was a heavy drinker many of these circumstances might have been explained on those grounds, but no such proof has been introduced, and through the private investigations I have made I have found in Thaw's systematized delusions concerning Standown and will impersonate the stare had advanced as evidence of Thaw's systematized delusions concerning Standown and will impersonate the stare had advanced as evidence of Thaw's systematized delusions concerning Standown and will impersonate the stare had advanced as evidence of Thaw's systematized delusions concerning S "Let me point out what may be an un-investigations I have made I have found no proof that such was the case."

Turning to the discussion of what the state had advanced as evidence of Thaw's systematized delusions concerning Stanford White and his relations with young women. Jerome said that even in the incident of the shooting on the Madison Square roof there was no indication that it had been prompted by great jealousy or rage. It was theatrically done, he said, and through the mouths of some of Thaw's own witnesses in the murder trials it had been adduced that he believed that his act was in reality an act of Providence. Later his delusion concerning White had spread after White's murder to include the District Attorney and all of Thaw's first counsel, whom Thaw believed to be in a conspiracy to railroad him to an asylum and thus shield the associates of the man murdered.

This is the situation, said Jerome in closing. "Here is a man who had a bad heritage from his ancestors, whose childhood was burdened with a highly neurotic condition and whose early manhood was spent in dissipation. Fifteen experts have sworn that he was insane at the time he shot White. Nine of these swore that the was an incurable aranoiac. Three experts against the 'eight of all the others now say he is sane.

"If your Honor should releate this man the future alone will test the wisdom of your decision. I don't think it safe to allow him to go at large without a full and searching medical examination by experts such as has been denied in these proceedings by the relator himself."

Morschauser in his summing up laid particular emphasis upon the contention that the question for the Justice to decide is not whether Thaw was insane when he particular emphasis upon the contention that the question for the Justice to decide is not whether Thaw was insane when he shot White but whether he is insane at the present time. The counsel put much emphasis on the testimony of Dr. Baker of Matteawan, who said that he had not been able to sever the present time. a able to see any traces of paranoia his prisoner since his removal there.

He asserted that not one who had seen Thaw's actions i court during the present hearing could have said that he was aught but a sane man.
Justice Mills announced no change of his intention to make known his decision on Thursday.

HARRISON GREY FISKE RETURNS A SURTAX ON THE HONEYMOON

try-Mrs. Fiske to Play in London. Harrison Grey Fiske returned yesterday morning on the Campania in time to meet Mrs. Fiske, who had just closed her season in Minneapolis and arrived with her company in New York. Mr. Fiske spent several weeks in London Mr. Fiske has signed contracts for the ppearance in America of an actor whom many respects he considers the best Thaw's writ for release from the Mattea- on the English stage-Lewis Waller. Mr. Waller is under a contract that has two years to run at the Lyric Theatre, London, where he is a star, but he has obtained a six months furlough and will come to America a year from September with the company that has been associated with him for several seasons and with his own plays and productions. He will play under Mr. Fiske's management a month in New York city and will devote twelve weeks to a few of the more important cities of America.

The play that will be the feature of his tour has not yet been decided upon, but several are under consideration. One of these is Devereaux's Sir Walter Raleigh."

success in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Fires of Fate."

Mr. Fiske discussed with Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree the idea of Mrs. Fiske's appearing in London, with the result that tentative arrangements were made whereby Mrs. Fiske will play a joint starring engagement at His Majesty's Theatre with Sir Herbert and an English company and productions. One of the foremost dramatists in England has been commissioned to write a play having the foremost dramatists in England has been commissioned to write a play having the specific object of providing Mrs. Fiske and Mr. Tree with an appropriate medium. "The bride put "It appears to be dangerous to travel with a mother-in-law." The bride put her handkerchief to her eyes, murmured "Poor mother," and cried. The bridegroom shed a few tears in sympathy. The solicitor became sympathetic and decided to ask no more questions. Lawyer Hamilton pleaded for lenity, saying that a newly wedded couple absorbed in their happy dreams should not be expected to be so exact and particluar as other persons. He said also that his client assumed that because many of the dutiable articles had been worn abroad they were not liable to duty.

The solicitor then announced that he would impose a penalty of $1.657.62, the appraised value of the goods, for making an under value declaration. In addition to this Mr. Fleischman would have to pay the duty of $929.74, or $2.587.36 in all. The solicitor intimated that the penalty might have been heavier but for the fact that the couple were on their wedding trip. Mr. Fleischman evidently had expected to be fined heavily and had the money ready.

Dramatist Can't Enjoin Mildred Holland. Supreme Court Justice Brady denied resterday the application by Grace Hawthorne De Santelys, a dramatist, for an injunction restraining Mildred Holland. the actress, and her husband, Edward C. White, from producing a dramatized version of "David Copperfield," for which Miss De Santelys says Miss Holland agreed to pay her. The court found that the actress denied the material allegations of the dramatist and decided that since the question of copyright was involved it was a case for the Federal court anyhow.
